Prologue

Throughout history, communication has been the vehicle of mankind's progress. The success or failure of every great civilization can be traced to its ability to communicate. Communication is also, therefore, the means, and the primary end, of education. Our high school education has consisted mainly of developing our abilities, individual and collective, to communicate, for the progress of our civilization is our responsibility.

BEARDED WONDER BOWS OUT

ROCHESTER, June 10—In February 1966, Mr. Guy W. Mann taught his last day at East High School and began his new job with the Board of Education Language department, based at Madison High School. His new job involves the teaching of English to inner city students.

As English teacher for 5½ years and Clarion advisor for 3½ years, Mr. Mann is perhaps best known, by former students, for his starring roles as Hamlet and Macbeth in his one-man Shakespearean productions. His feats as Clarion advisor have gained him city wide fame, for that monthly publication won second prize last year in the Gannett Publications contest.

Mr. Mann is reportedly quite satisfied with his new job, but enjoys frequent visits to his old realm, for which he maintains great interest and loyalty.

MR. MANN

An Editorial:

FROM A STUDENT VIEWPOINT it is tragic, but by virtue of the ability that makes them what they are, the best teachers seldom stay long in the classrooms, but are taken away to positions "downtown." While it is true that from behind their new desks they indirectly influence the students by controlling policy, what of the students' need for people who can make education exciting? Perhaps the Board of Education has been looking at its system with the wrong perspective. Since the Board's primary goal is education, why not put the best people to work educating, and make that worth their while, instead of offering only subsistence wages to teachers and thus degrading all educational work except administrative positions?

This year, Mr. Guy W. Mann left his East High classes for an administrative position. With sincere thanks for his work while he was here, and with best wishes for his future, the 1966 Orient staff dedicates this book to Mr. Guy W. Mann, Jr.

Administration

The success of the years spent in high school is almost entirely dependent upon the ability of the administration and faculty to communicate with each other and the student body. At East High, the principal and vice-principal must be able to execute the monumental task of running a large urban high school effectively, or the school as a whole cannot function properly. The faculty and administration might be compared to a series of concentric circles, each greatly dependent on the rings within itself and influencing the circles that follow.

At the central core of this diagram would be the administration, who must not only co-ordinate the activities of the entire school but also work with the community. They must not only be capable administrators but also work with students to establish the best possible relationship between students and faculty.

To the student the teachers, who compose the next circumscribed ring, must import not only their specialized knowledge but also their interest and enthusiasm. The department heads must co-ordinate the programs of study in their departments and establish new and interesting courses that can benefit the student in a fast changing world. Many teachers devote their free time to working with students individually and through school organizations and teams.

The next circle consists of people who devote their time to helping the student mature intellectually and physically. The class counselors not only help the student with his course of study but also advise him on pursuits following college. The four deans serve not only as disciplinarians but also as friends to students who need their guidance. The nurse, dental hygienist, psychologist, speech therapist and sight saver help us physically, therefore making us more receptive to instruction.

The office staff, cafeteria staff and custodial staff efficiently maintain a high standard of work to keep the school functioning smoothly.

It is impossible to determine which group has the greatest effect on a student's life because a combination of all of these people, each doing his specific job, can prepare a student for life in the adult world.

The Men at the Top

CHARLES N. CLARK
Principal

As Principal, Mr. Charles N. Clark is the most important, and, perhaps, the least appreciated, man at East High. His duties, aside from close co-operation with Vice Principal Fred R. Myers and the counselors and deans, range from soothing irate parents to hosting visitors to East High. His position demands that he be constantly aware of everything happening in his school and constantly in touch with every person in it. Despite his packed schedule, his door is always open, and any student with an idea or a problem will find understanding and sound advice. The 1966 Orient staff salutes and thanks Principal Charles N. Clark, Vice Principal Fred R. Meyers, and all the counselors.

Because of increased need for waiting room space over the past several years, the deans this year moved to new office quarters on the second floor. The new offices, equipped with one-way mirrors, bright bare lights and stark decor reminiscent of Orwell's 1984, have a psychological effect which greatly expedites the handling of disciplinary problems. The deans, embued with fresh enthusiasm by their new headquarters, have done even more than their usual excellent job, extending their efforts to aiding the S.G.A. build new school spirit and to increasing the attendance at dances.

Special Recognition

East High School is always proud when a student or a teacher or an idea reflects excellence; but in a school such as ours, where so many diversified types of achievement exist, it is difficult to acknowledge all of them appropriately.

Recognition must be given to outstanding students: winners of the Harvard Book Award, the Bausch and Lomb Science Award, and Letters of Commendation; members of the Wolgast Chapter of the National Honor Society; and participants in such extracurricular activities as Wide Horizons and the Rochester Association for the United Nations. Credit must be given to advanced facilities and teaching methods such as Advanced Placement and Honors; new courses such as Far Eastern History must also be praised for their contributions to the educational system.

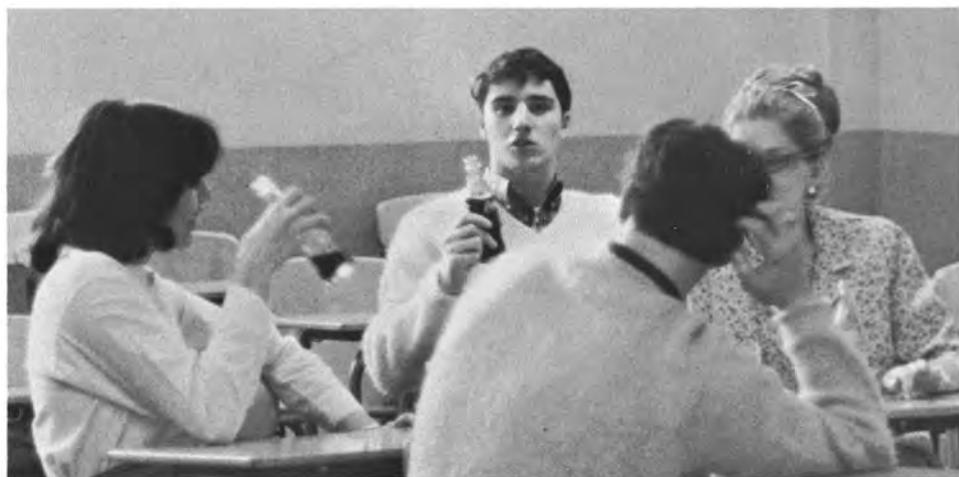

Therefore the task of giving recognition is extremely difficult, but ultimately worthwhile; for while we commend those who are responsible for much of our pride in East High School, we also hope to inspire others to continue their search for excellence and knowledge.

Student-teacher Communication at its Best

New to East High, but now very familiar to students and teachers alike, are the student discussion groups held during study hall periods. Under the guidance of Mr. Lambert, these sessions have become an important link in the chain of communication between student and teacher. With a teacher present at each group, the students are given an opportunity to voice their complaints, problems, and suggestions concerning their life at East. Informality and closeness, two key words this year in the small groups, have made it easier for student and teacher to better understand each other. Many of these groups proved to be rewarding and profitable attempts at bridging a wide gap of communication between faculty and student.

The Wolgast Chapter of the National Honor Society, under the direction of Miss Carnahan and Mr. Youngman, is composed of students who have met the requirements of scholarship, character, leadership, and service. Since membership is a recognition of continual service and not only achievement, every year the members perform such tasks as tutoring underclassmen, preparing the honor roll, and decorating the Christmas tree. This year, in addition to increasing its size, the National Honor Society has broadened its scope of communication and service. Communication increased in November, when the National Honor Society hosted another National Honor Society group from Middlesex Valley Central School. The National Honor Society took over the responsibilities concerning fire and shelter drills and care of the flag.

This year, eighteen East High seniors have been given awards by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. Seventeen received Letters of Commendation, and one, Todd Light, achieved semi-finalist standing. The recipients of these awards were determined by the scores they obtained on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test taken last year, and so rank in the top two percent of high school seniors in the nation.

Each year the Bausch and Lomb branch of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Rochester awards the Bausch and Lomb Science Award to students from each of the area high schools. EMPIRE BOYS' STATE — Earl Sprague.

Each year the Harvard Club of Rochester honors an outstanding boy of the junior class by presenting him the Harvard Book Award. Last year this award was given to Todd Light in recognition of continual academic excellence and active participation in both school and community activities.

This year, Earl Sprague was East High's representative to the American Legion's Boy's State week. Along with 30 other boys from Monroe County, Earl spent a week at Colgate University learning about politics on the city, county, and state levels, and holding mock elections at each level. The total group at Colgate consisted of about a thousand boys, each sent by a different American Legion post in New York State.

HARVARD BOOK AWARD — Todd Light.

RAUN — Nancy Weber, Lindy Curme.

Rosalind Curme and Nancy Weber represented East High at the junior council of the Rochester Association for the United Nations. The junior council is composed of representatives from 28 area high schools who are interested in the United Nations. Meetings are held monthly at the Chamber of Commerce building where well known speakers discuss many current issues. Highlights of the year included a trip to New York City to observe the General Assembly in action, and a mock session of the Security Council. Through participation, the members of the junior council have become more aware of the purpose of the United Nations and of its role in the world.

A World-wide Com

Last summer I was given the opportunity of participating in the Youth for Understanding Teen-Age Exchange program. Through this program I became a part of a German family for nine weeks, sharing in their customs and way of life. My German family lived in Rastede, a small town near Bremen, in northern Germany. They were so warm and friendly that from the first day I felt completely at ease. I had four brothers and sisters between the ages of seventeen and twenty-two, and we shared many of the same interests.

During the first week of my stay I attended school with my German Sister. I learned many things about the German school system and found many similarities and differences between theirs and ours. During their six week summer vacation we took trips through much of Germany and spent a week at the North Sea. I was able to become well acquainted and talk with many people from Germany and other European countries.

TEEN DIPLOMATS—Todd Light, Wolfgang Pape, Lindy Curme, Doug Hicks, Sylvia Scofield, Annika Ekedahl.

Through this experience I have gained a greater understanding of the German people and their way of life, and will always remember all the people who made my visit so wonderful.

Lindy Curme

Until the ship pulled away from the Fortieth Street Pier, the possibility of spending the summer as a member of a foreign family had seemed remote. The next two months showed me how fortunate I was. At the invitation of a family which totaled nine, Wetzlar, Germany, was to be my home as a Summer Program exchange student of the American Field Service.

The help and understanding I received from my foreign family as I assimilated their language and customs made the effort worthwhile and made the exchange of ideas somewhat easier. Travelling with them through central and southern Germany I saw their country as no tourist could, gaining a genuine appreciation of their history and way of life; I have them to thank for this perspective.

Before the end of my stay I had seen the German Grand Prix at Nurburgring, gone to a German high school, and met with all of the other A. F. S. students in Bremen for four days.

The experiences were unique, the way of life was different; in combination they provided an unforgettable summer.

During the past year I have had the opportunity of being the host-brother for our German exchange student, Wolfgang Pape. This experience proved to be the most rewarding and enlightening of my life.

When Wolfgang arrived in Rochester, he was a confused and exhausted teen-age diplomat. The long bus-trip from New York City and the constant use of the English language had produced both physical and mental fatigue. However, after several weeks, Wolfgang adjusted to our way of life and acquired an unrestricted control of our language.

Throughout his stay Wolfgang and I exchanged an enormous amount of information regarding our countries' politics and cultures. I learned more about Europe and Europeans than would be possible through any school course. I feel that the most important reward from this experience was realizing that it is just as important that Americans learn about Europe as Europeans learn about America.

Doug Hicks

"Walk together, talk together, O ye peoples of the earth; then and only then shall ye have peace." This slogan of the American Field Service best describes the value of an exchange student program.

Living with a wonderful American family and attending school at East High has proved to me to be a time of most interesting and enjoyable experiences.

Since my German school is not co-educational, my first days here at East High were quite confusing for me in addition to looking for my classes and understanding your language. But thanks to the friendly help of all of you I soon found my way around.

It has always filled me with pride when I saw the interest of Americans in "Old Germany." I hope that the picture I have painted of my country contains more than old castles, beer-gardens and Volkswagen.

Comparing yours with the European culture has broadened my horizon immensely. The role of the American female on a par, the high living standard and small things like table-manners (Europeans keep their hands on the table and eat with fork and knife) have opened new aspects to me.

One of the most impressive events in the field of sports were the games of our basketball-team leading to the Section 5 championship supported by the nice cheerleaders. American football and baseball — strange to the average European — are now more or less familiar to me.

On the whole I should like to thank my American family and everyone at East High very much indeed for this ever memorable year with you.

Wolfgang Pape

Annika came to our home the Sunday before the Great Storm, bringing her sunny personality and great sense of humor. Surprisingly, she also brought a list of Swedish card games which our family learned and used to weather the storm. The reason for this? She explained to me that Swedish summers are very rainy and that she and her friends need something to keep themselves occupied until the rain stops. Of course she has a serious side. She loves languages — French, German, and English — besides her native Swedish, and hopes to learn Spanish soon.

Knowing Annika and learning more about Sweden has been a great experience for me and my family, and I am thrilled that she was able to stay with us.

Sylvia Scofield

As a teenage diplomat under the Youth For Understanding program, I have had the chance to gain wide experiences in the United States. Having the opportunity to stay as a member of a family, go to high school and do things like American teenagers is a wonderful way of getting acquainted with a foreign country. America used to seem so far away from Sweden, but now I think our countries seem so much closer. Of course the rapid communication partly is responsible for that feeling.

I've always been asked what I find most different here from Sweden. It is hard to answer that question because I find our countries similar in most ways with perhaps a very small difference. Anyway, Swedish people don't participate in so many social activities, and our school system is quite different. We can't choose subjects as here, but we can choose among a few groups of courses. Sports are part of our school program, but there are no certain teams and thrilling games as here. There are no clubs in Swedish schools either. I'm very fond of the American school system, and I wish we could get the same spirit with our schools.

Sweden and the United States stand on about the same standard of living which gives us the same opportunities in our way of living. Among teenagers, dating, dances and music are almost just the same.

I really have enjoyed my stay here, and it will be hard for me to leave Rochester, my family, and all the friends I have made here. I'm glad, however, to have so many pleasant memories to bring back to Sweden.

Thank you all for making my stay here so great!

Fascinating

East High seniors this year found three new courses available to them in history and computer programming. Far Eastern history is a non-Regents course for seniors who have demonstrated proficiency in previous history classes. It concentrates on past civilizations of Asia and the Far East. History 12 is designed to give interested students a broader picture of the world and the forces acting in it. Computer programming provides instruction in the operation of East's new computers.

Some psychiatrists feel that the overwhelming enthusiasm for the computer programming is actually a regression to the pot-holder making days of childhood.

The students are selected as juniors and placed in jobs best suited to their individual skills and aptitudes.

ADVANCED PLACEMENT FACULTY — First row: Mr. Smout, Mrs. Brown, Mr. Kramer. Second row: Mr. Kirchhoff, Mr. Heila.

Advanced Placement and Honors courses at East High have brought greater knowledge and satisfaction to competent and ambitious students during the past several years. It is the purpose of these courses, which encompass all academic areas, to create a meaningful educational experience by providing a challenge and by encouraging students to strive for achievement and intellectual development.

In the Advanced Placement program, selected students in the eleventh or twelfth grade pursue college level studies. Those who score well on the AP exams, given by the College Board, may be eligible for advanced college placement or credit hours, according to the standards of the college or university they plan to attend.

Mr. Kramer explains things to his AP Biology class.

Advance Knowledge

The Honors program offers students in grades eight through twelve a chance to explore subjects more extensively than is possible in regular classes. Students may also choose courses in math and science one year ahead of the usual grade curriculum, allowing them to take additional courses of interest that would otherwise be taken in summer school or not at all.

Now that the Advanced Placement program has been in operation at East High for four years and the Honors program for seven, their advantages are easily seen. Participating students find their education more meaningful and memorable. Further co-operation between students and teachers will continue to improve the high level of efficiency initiated by these programs.

East High's newest, and most expensive, asset is the closed circuit television studio. Under Mr. Russell's direction, students can now obtain unique practical experience in the field of mass communication.

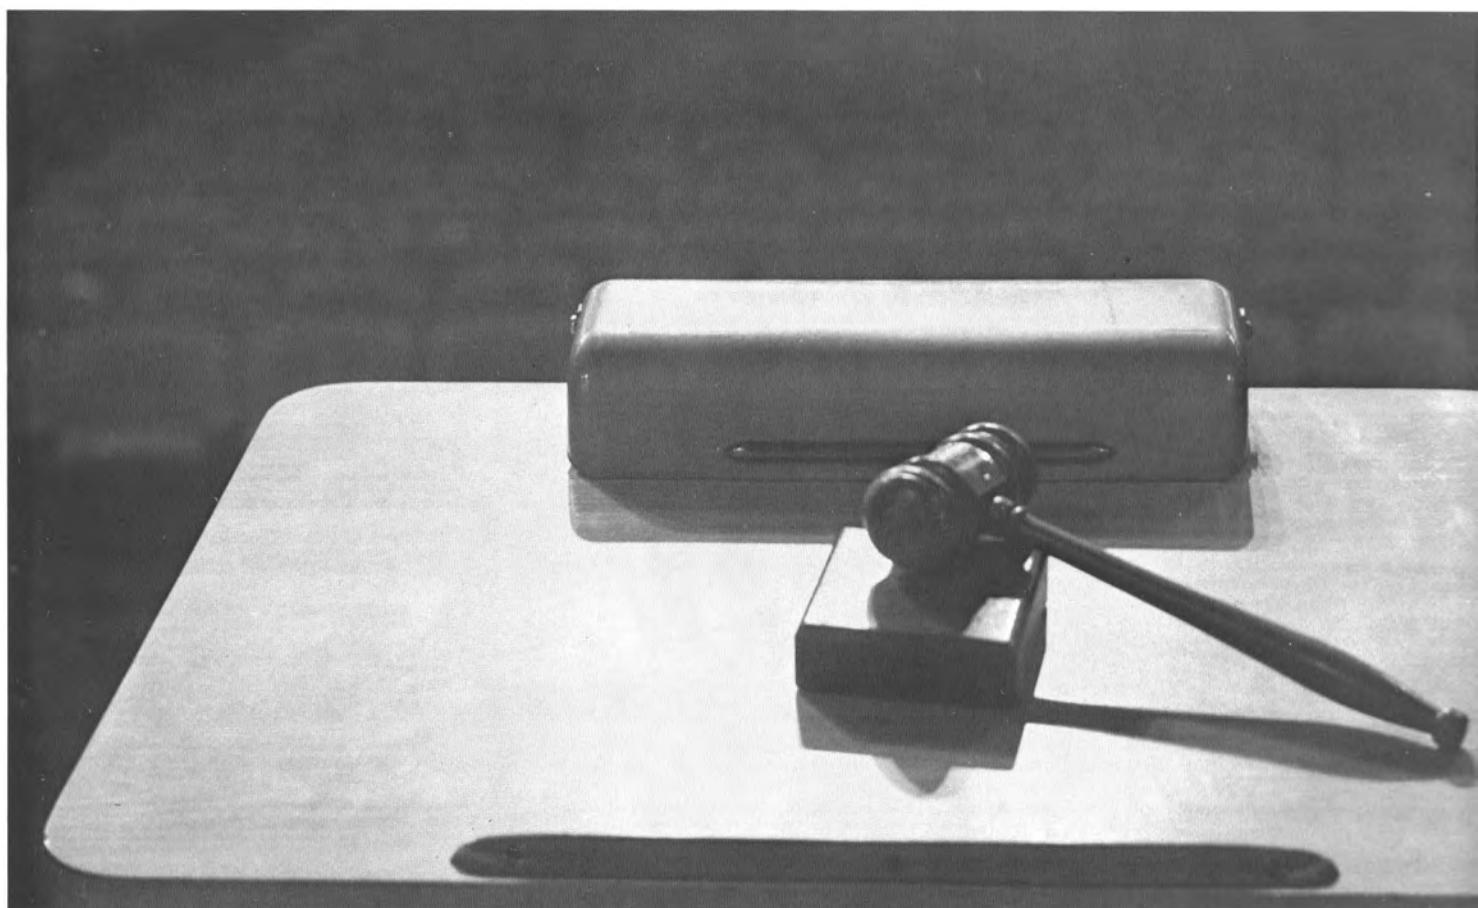

Student cameramen, floor directors, and engineers tape instructional programs in English, home economics, typing, industrial art, mathematics, and science. These programs are broadcast both at East and throughout the city schools to the respective classes.

In addition, the T. V. studio also tapes special programs whenever possible. The highlights of this year were taped interviews with Governor Rockefeller, Senator Kennedy, and Congressman Horton. These interviews were also broadcast throughout the city schools.

The department looks forward to more interviews with important personalities, and greater use of television's potential both at East High and throughout the city school system.

Another Student Government Association has passed into history, and once again it is time to evaluate the Government's success. This year was, as S.G.A. years go, highly successful.

The main activities of the year were the Homecoming Weekend and the Turnabout. The Homecoming, in honor of the football team, was very well received, featuring the Knights on the first night and the crowning of Lindy Curme as Homecoming Queen on the second. The Turnabout, the "Roses Are Red . . ." in honor of Valentine's day, was beautifully decorated and also a success.

The most significant S.G.A. projects have been the continued support of the S.G.A.'s Greek foster child and a large contribution to the Association for Teenage Diplomats. The Foster child, Paul Sierras, and his whole family greatly appreciate our aid, as his mother is in poor health. Our contribution to ATAD enables foreign students to spend a year at East.

Another interesting feature of the year was the Congress's successfully beating down an attempt by a group of students to abolish the S.G.A. Excitement ran high for three meetings as arguments raged and tempers flared, but the S.G.A. emerged unscathed.

The student body selected the 1966-67 administration in early May. The Orient staff congratulates the old administration and extends best wishes and sympathy to the new.

Orient

Bloodshot eyes and nervous habits are the traditional distinguishing features of Orient editors and advisors, for myriad are the problems encountered along the path to a 180 page yearbook. Harried by vicious lady gym teachers and well meaning but inept photographers, in charge of a staff rocked by internal strife and faced with an apathetic market, the Orient editors and advisor are bound, under penalty of death, to produce an attractive and well-planned yearbook with minimal deficit spending. For this reason, only people who know very little about yearbooking ever apply for the top positions.

The reward comes at the end of the year, when the yearbook, is distributed (for, no matter how the editor-in-chief wails that the book will never come out before September, it always makes it on time). Then come the congratulations and the praise, and the hours spent writing, re-writing, proofing, laying out pages, writing passes, and skipping classes all fuse into a warm sentimental blur, and even the advisor's ulcer begins to subside.

While most yearbook editors swear that they will never have another thing to do with another yearbook, working on a publication is actually one of the most rewarding of educational experiences. The friendships developed in the hectic, highly unorganized atmosphere are strong, and the bad feelings quickly give way to the tolerance and understanding that are almost always developed.

CLARION ADVISOR AND EDITOR—Mr. Guy Mann, Jeanie Hinchey.

The purpose of the Clarion is threefold: the news, features, and sports inform students of events past and yet to come; the editorials act as a sounding board for student views and opinions; and the production provides concrete experience in journalism for the staff members.

Clarion

The Clarion was fortunate to have two outstanding advisors this year, Mr. Mann for the first semester, and Mr. Giallombardo for the second semester. Under their guidance, Clarions were ground out.

Fits or Is Available

CLARION EDITORS—Sitting: Mary Manetta, Marilyn Maracle, Dottie Wezler, Meg Hinman, Sally Wheeler. Standing: Cathy Fecteau, Ron Wallace, Mike Ottman, Mike Davias.

In past years we have sent the paper to an outside press; this year it was printed at East by Mr. McCracken's Printing Classes. Lower production costs and a smaller more compact newspaper, can be attributed to the offset method and to his long hours of work.

The More

MOSAIC

The 1966 edition of the Mosaic, East High's literary-art magazine, was characterized by three new developments.

First, the magazine was printed at school by Mr. McCracken's printing class this year, instead of by outside printers.

Second, an art contest was sponsored by the staff for the best cover-design. The winning entry was chosen by the faculty of the Art Department.

The third innovation involved the decision to sell advertising space in order to meet expenses.

Mosaic staff members, having no 'home' of their own, were compelled to work gypsy-fashion in many different parts of the school. Among the Mosaic "headquarters" sites were several class and typing rooms, the Student Publications Office, and the cafeteria.

In spite of these obstacles, the staff managed to produce a well-received magazine. Student support was encouraging and a great morale-booster.

Esthetic Publications

The two language publications of East High are La Vida, the Spanish magazine, and L'Etoile, the French newspaper.

La Vida is published each Spring by the Spanish classes as part of actual class work. Members of Spanish IV class comprise the editorial staff, and are assisted by other Spanish students in compiling and editing a collection of prose, poetry, editorials, and puzzles in Spanish.

The L'Etoile staff consists of second, third, and fourth year French students, and chooses its own format each year. This year the paper concentrated on non-fiction articles aimed at increasing the students' knowledge of French customs and activities.

Both publications play an integral role in the teaching of languages and in the individual teaching of effective communications. Each provides the students who produce it with valuable experience in the field of communication.

East High's many after-school clubs play a vital role in school life. Some, such as the Future Teachers, Health Careers, Junior Red Cross, and Library and Attendance Aides, are service-giving organizations and perform functions necessary to a well-run school. The library aides keep the school's library neat and efficient; student and attendance aides shuttle mountains of messages daily to and fro from administration to student. Members of the Health Careers Club have a choice of either lending a hand to our always-busy school nurse during study halls or working after school and vacations at St. Ann's Home, a home for the aged, as Candy Stripers volunteers. Similarly, the Junior Red Cross works cooperatively with the Red Cross, making disaster relief kits, filling Care boxes at Christmas, and visiting the shut-ins at the Monroe County Home. In recent years, members have been giving monthly parties for the children at the Breck Street Settlement House.

Each of East's six language courses have affiliated clubs where interested students can obtain a more detailed knowledge of the history, culture and civilizations of the countries whose languages they are studying. There are Italian, Spanish, Latin, French, German and Russian clubs.

Science clubs (i.e. Research, Psychology, Plant and Biology) provide a deeper knowledge than is possible in normal classroom experience. They explore the why's and wherefore's of growth, both zoologic and botanic, and the behavior patterns of the human mind.

These many and varied organizations are open to any student who wishes to participate in their activities. Those who do join not only receive the personal satisfaction of helping others and the gratitude of the people whom they have assisted, but they also add knowledge and pursue interests beneficial to themselves.

Seniors

As graduation approaches, a critical look at the accomplishments of five years will justify our pride in the class of 1966.

Mr. Sternbach and Mrs. Terrell have led one of the most financially successful classes in East High history. The freshman pie sale, the first successful class activity, and the African carving sale of our junior year provided schools for two South American communities and a generous donation to the Wilcox Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Our senior year saw a more intangible but scarcely less important accomplishment. East High's basketball team won the Section V championship and, more important, brought to many of us the greatest feelings of school spirit and pride that we had ever known.

If some part of these feelings can be left to the classes to follow, the new attitude that may result on the part of future seniors will be our greatest contribution to East High School.

As we leave East High School, we can only hope that our five years here have taught us, if not what we want from life, at least how to find out what we want and how to get it. These five years have not been wasted if they have turned us into mature, self-sufficient individuals who take pride in our own accomplishment. If they have not been wasted, we owe a great deal to our teachers, deans, and counselors as well as to our class advisors. If they have been wasted, we have only ourselves to blame.

ROBERT BELLOMO, A MEMBER OF THE CLASS OF 1966, DIED OF LEUKEMIA IN 1965. THE ENTIRE SCHOOL, AND ESPECIALLY THE CLASS OF 1966, MOURNED DEEPLY FOR HIS LOSS. THIS PAGE IS DEDICATED TO ROBERT BELLOMO, THAT WE MAY NEVER FORGET HIM.

The co-operative work program, headed by Mr. Shepard, is a relatively new program at East High. Involving 175 students and nine teachers, the three year program strives to integrate the vocational and academic aspects of education. Accordingly, increasingly greater emphasis is placed on part-time work during the three years until, in the third year, students attend classes for half a day and work, at a job found by the department, the other half. Mr. Shepard keeps in close contact with his working students, who have almost without exception, earned high praise from their employers. He hopes that, as more students graduate, the true influence of the program can be studied by following the participants after graduation.

Sternbach Enterprises

International communication at its best is illustrated by the 400 students attending new schools in Columbia this year thanks to the class of 1966. The African carving sale, led by Norman Sternbach, provided $850 for Bogata, Columbia, and $150 to Yoli, Columbia, through the Peace Corps. With this money and CARE equipment, the inhabitants of each city, working on their own time, built a two room, 200 student school. The project, inspired by Mr. Sternbach, has been given national publicity through the P. T. A. magazine and Reader's Digest.

Sports

Sports at East play a prominent role in the development of character and physical fitness. The results are obvious from the success of the teams and the enthusiasm of the students.

The varsity teams made a respectable showing this year led by the Section V Champion Basketball team. The junior varsity basketball teams followed with a city championship, and the tennis and swimming teams were both second in Interscholastic competition.

For non-varsity athletes, a varied intramural program is offered, featuring swimming, basketball, tennis and volleyball. The teams compete among themselves for trophies and prizes. This program has been valuable in providing competitors to the varsity teams.

The third group of East High athletes are the girls. The primary organization for them is the Girls Athletic Association. This group sponsors for girls the same sports as the boys intramural program, and a square dance program. In addition, the G.A.A. members were primarily responsible for the enchanting Synchronized Swim show.

East High is proud of its athletes, who have earned their distinction. This section of the 1966 Orient is dedicated to the Orient athletes.

SKI TEAM

With only four members, the ski team did a remarkable job, beating all city teams for the championship, and having a first place winner in the Section V competition. Ed Fuller won the Downhill event at Bristol Mountain on February 22 in 31.8 seconds, a full second ahead of his nearest competition. The other members placed respectably in the Slalom and Giant Slalom events against top competition.

ALL-SCHOLASTIC—Bruce Malboeuf

The East High Orientals ended the season with a disappointing 2-5-1 record for 5th place. The team, however, gave the spectators many exciting moments, such as holding a strong Madison team to a 6-6 tie.

Senior Bruce Malboeuf, who starred all season, made All-Scholastic for the second year.

Although cross country is not an ideal spectator sport, it nevertheless requires many hours of rugged training and conditioning. Unlike most sports, cross country depends upon each individual's efforts to compile enough points to win.

This year the team drilled nightly, under Mr. Emerson's leadership, to prepare for the seasons meets. Even though 90% of last year's varsity graduated, we managed to retain our third place in the city.

SECTION V

VARSITY BASKETBALL — First row: Fred Forbes, Phil Mangano, Larry Noble, Jesse Dudley, Sam Gray, Jim Brand. Second row: Mr. Panaggio, Gene Cairo, Larry Burroughs, Bruce Malboeuf, Doug Cash, Norm Bounds, Joe Foster.

For the first time since 1957, an Orient basketball team won the Section V championship. Coach Panaggio's team finished their season with a 20-1 record.

The only defeat came at the hands of Franklin, forcing a playoff for the city championship. Winning 62-52, the Orientals went on to beat Lyons and Rush-Henrietta in sectional games. The result was a fourth encounter with the Quakers, a third win, 61-51, and the championship.

This year's team placed all five starters on the All-Scholastic teams. Of those, Larry Burroughs, Jim Brand, Sam Gray and Norm Bounds were chosen as all-sectional.

NEVER BEFORE HAS IT
BEEN SO NECESSARY TO KNOW
HOW TO GET A JOB!

Now comes the time of decision for your career ahead. It will probably be one of the most important decisions you will be called upon to make. Fortunately, you live in a land where freedom of choice and opportunity are almost unlimited.

Of course, anyone's "first job" is to get his basic education. Congratulations to you who get this job well done.

NOW, HOW ABOUT THE NEXT STEP?

Career opportunities in Rochester, with its many and diverse industries, commercial organizations and professions, should interest almost any student. Most Rochester companies are recognized for their high standards and advanced technology. It follows that standards for employment are high too—and a good education tops the list.

An employer knows what kind of people he is looking for. The student ready for a career should have an equally good idea of what he or she is looking for. Consulting with parents, counselors, friends, and with employers themselves will reveal what kind of positions are available in what kind of organizations.

Evaluating your abilities and appraising your readiness for the career of your choice is the key to your future. There is no door it cannot unlock—when the key fits!

The quality we most applaud

At Xerox the emphasis is on innovation, on creativity. Not only in research, but in everything Xerox does. It is the quality we most applaud.

Perhaps because the inventor of xerography, in searching for a new imaging system, foresaw that success would result in one of the time's most important discoveries.

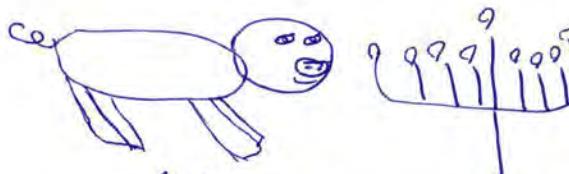

Perhaps this is why the creative individual is indispensable to Xerox. Why we seek diligently those who see needs that have not been clearly identified by others, and who then have the innovative capacity to devise products or services which fill these needs.

To that imaginative analysis of what the future will require, Xerox owes its growth in the field of graphic communications.

Epilogue

Our five years at East have been based on, and aimed at, successful communication. If they have succeeded in their purpose we are now well equipped for the complicated and demanding future. Whether they have succeeded or not, we will always remember them. Our thanks to all who made these years what they were, and best wishes to those about to leave East High School with us.
